CHA Instructors Amanda Love and Kara Musgrave are Guests for the Certified Horsemanship Association on Horses in the Morning Radio Show

(August 2015) – Each month, CHA has two featured guests on the Horses in the Morning Radio Show on the third Tuesday of the month. The featured guests for the month of August will be Amanda Love of West Texas A&M University and Kara Musgrave of Life Adventure Center of the Bluegrass. Love and Musgrave will discuss Lesson Plans During the Lesson and Homework for Riders. CHA's CEO Christy Landwehr joins as co-host with Glenn the Geek, for CHA's featured segment. The show will air on Tuesday, August 18, at 9 a.m. Eastern Time and can be found on iTunes, HorsesintheMorning.com, or through the Horse Radio Network mobile phone app.

Love is the Horsemanship Director at West Texas A&M University (WTAMU) in Canyon, Texas. She has Master of Science and Bachelor of Science degrees from WTAMU and an Associates in Applied Science from Black Hawk College in Kewanee, IL, in Equine Science and Horse Science Technology. Currently, she is an Animal Science Instructor in the Department of Agricultural Sciences at the university. She is also a Master Instructor through CHA in hunt seat and western, an Assistant Clinic Instructor, and she is currently on the CHA Board of Directors. This active rider and cross fit athlete is also the Head Coach of the women's equestrian team at WTAMU, which has approximately 45 student athletes from the Department of Agricultural Sciences and Intercollegiate Athletics. Love is also Camp Director for the Summer Children's Horsemanship Camps hosted by the university. Before becoming an instructor in 2007, she was a Graduate Assistant and the Equestrian Team Assistant Coach and Horse Center Office Manager.

Musgrave is the Equestrian Manager at the Life Adventure Center of the Bluegrass in Versailles, KY, where they offer English riding lessons, vaulting, and use horses to teach teambuilding, communication skills, and self-esteem. She has a Bachelor of Arts in Leadership with a minor in Equine Management from Asbury University. Musgrave is a CHA Certified Instructor in English, western, and jumping, and she serves as the CHA Region 4 Representative. Since she started riding at age five, she has tried almost every discipline and equine sport available. She trained her first horse in high school to compete in TREC, to jump, and to be a camp and lesson horse. Her current horse, Ben, is a half draft Paint, and he is used as a lesson horse, a vaulting horse, and as an eventer.
